The most powerful stimulus for the RAS is physical need; the brain will not be able to engage in the task of learning unless basic survival needs are first met. As students experience the connection between practice and progress in achieving their goals, they will appreciate their teachers for having provided them with the keys that unlock the doors to their aspirations. A leader who attempts to make all the decisions will inevitably fail as it is impossible for one individual to be correct all the time.

Through these charts, students gain an awareness of the degree of talent and
